Mr. K. Wants a Nobel Peace Prize

WASHINGTON — Premier Khrushchev has decided he ought to have the famed Nobel Peace Prize — no less. The Kremlin ruler thinks he deserves it for his "devoted and untiring disarmament efforts."

That's what the Central Intelligence Agency has learned from authoritative Iron Curtain sources. General C. P. Cabell, Deputy Director of CIA, reported this intriguing development to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He stated that Soviet officials in the leading capitals of the world have been ordered to exert every pressure to win the Nobel prize for Khrushchev.

Mr. Scott

THE STATE Department is cold-shouldering efforts of the American Veterans of the Elbe River Link-Up to hold a 15th anniversary of that World War II event in the U.S. Joseph Polowsky, Chicago bus driver who is secretary of the organization, sought State Department approval for a delegation of Russian veterans to visit San Francisco. He was turned down because "San Francisco is closed to travel by Soviet citizens."

The Department also advised Polowsky that "the Soviet War Veterans Committee continues to be a political organization primarily dedicated to furthering the objectives of Soviet Communism; its interest in substantive programs of veterans benefits and veteran rehabilitation has been distinctly secondary."

SOCIAL WHIRL — The French embassy is one of the most beautiful in Washington, but that isn't satisfying Ambassador Herve Alphand for the impending visit of General and Madame de Gaulle.

The embassy is undergoing extensive redecorating, most important of which is the dining room. Its walls have been covered with seven art treasures from the Petit Trianon palace. They are painted wooden panels of the 18th century. There is also a new green-and-beige Aubusson carpet that harmonizes with these exquisite panels.

MRS. EISENHOWER'S favorite in the White House is the Red Room. She explained this preference to friends as due to the fact that "it was in the Red Room that we held our first reception, and there is always something special about a first."

WHEN MRS. MERRIWEATHER Post Hutton Davies May, multi-millionaire "society queen," entertains, it is always on a grand scale. Latest instance of that was her bringing 22 coeds and two chaperones from a Long Island school, named after her father, to Washington for a weekend of sightseeing and partying.

The large group was flown to the Capital in Mrs. May's private jet-prop plane, and toured about Washington and nearby historic places in a fleet of cars. Mrs. May also arranged for her guests a "private visit to the White House," a rare privilege.
